

ProQuattro was founded in 2002 and is located in Sayreville, NJ. We provide computer consulting services for companies in central- and northern-New Jersey and New York City, as well as their satellite offices. We feel that simply because a company doesn't have an IT staff, it shouldn't be excluded from taking advantage of the cost savings and productivity gains that technology can offer. Our goal is to share our computer knowledge and expertise with companies who might otherwise only have technology advice from a computer hobbyist.

ProQuattro can provide a number of computer related services. We can manage your technology resources and provide you with all the benefits of having a full-time IT staff without having the expense of paying for an IT department. We analyze your business; recommend where technology can make improvement; design and implement the solution; and maintain and support it. We also can provide project management and architecture services for computer rollouts, deployments, or migrations. ProQuattro can also help get a company on the internet by designing web sites and building email servers, as well as hosting the servers.

Our strength comes from the experience that our consultants have. Our consultants have an average of 10 years in the IT field, and know how to meet the needs of both large and small companies. Our company's size is just right to offer the intimacy of an independent consultant with the breadth of knowledge of a much larger firm. Our consultants have experiences from building an Exchange or Linux mail server to operating a myriad of web servers to an international corporate-wide rollout of custom-designed applications.

ProQuattro's consultants can develop a solution that will meet your needs and your wallet, and still exceed your expectations.
